Special Anniversary Edition of Prometheus

December 2003 (Vol. 21, No. 4)

Prometheus will celebrate 20 years of publication with a special anniversary issue in December 2003. This issue will include invited full length articles from leading thinkers such as Mike Gibbons, Robin Mansell, Terry Curtis, Rolf Wigand and Michael Kirby. A section of this anniversary issue will also be devoted to review articles where a number of invited contributors look back and reflect on the journal's 20 year contribution to enhancing intellectual debate in its five sub-themes, including book reviews. Editorial contributions from a range of leading international scholars are also included. Further information about this issue can be obtained from the guest editor, Richard Joseph, R.Joseph@murdoch.edu.au

Prometheus Editorial Changes

William Dutton's role has changed from North American Editor to E-Editor. He is

Director of the Oxford Internet Institute, Professor of Internet Studies, University of Oxford, and Fellow of Balliol College. His most recent publications include: Society on the Line (Oxford University Press, 1999) and Digital Academe: New Media in Higher Education and Learning, edited with Brian D. Loader (Taylor & Francis Routledge, 2002). The Oxford Internet Institute (OII) is a multi-disciplinary academic centre focused on furthering understanding of the economic, political, institutional, scientific, legal and other social factors shaping the Internet and its implications for society.

John de la Mothe is now North American Editor. He is the Canada Research Chair in Innovation Strategy at the University of Ottawa. Educated in Canada and England, he has held teaching and research positions at Harvard, MIT, Yale and University College London. He has produced more than a dozen books on science, technology and innovation policy. He works extensively in an advisory capacity for NATO, the Canadian, Mexican and Caribbean governments, and the OECD.
