

Contributors to this issue

WILLIAM KINGSTON is Research Associate in the School of Business Studies, Trinity College, Dublin, and Visiting Professor in the School of Public Policy, George Mason University, Virginia, USA

LYNNE JOHNSTONE is Lecturer in Health Services Management, Charles Sturt University, Bathurst, NSW, Australia

GREG CLYDESDALE is a Lecturer in the Department of Management and International Business, Massey University, Auckland, New Zealand

MARIO COCCIA is Economist at the National Research Council of Italy, Ceris, Torino, Italy and Visiting Professor of Economics at the Polytechnic of Turin, Italy.

PETER CLARK is Professorial Research Fellow in Organization Theory at Queen Mary, University of London.

J.-C. SPENDER is Visiting Professor at the Open University Business School, UK. Prior to retirement in April 2003, he was Dean of the School of Business & Technology FIT/SUNY in New York and is now researching, consulting, writing and teaching Strategy and Knowledge Management around the world. Previous appointments include faculty positions at City University (London), York University (Toronto), UCLA, and Rutgers, together with professional practice in nuclear engineering (Rolls-Royce) and large scale computing (IBM).