

Contributors to this Issue

DARREL P. DOESSEL is Associate Professor of Mental Health Economics at the Queensland Centre for Mental Health Research, School of Population Health, The University of Queensland.

WILLIAM H. DUTTON is Director of the Oxford Internet Institute, University of Oxford, where he is Professor of Internet Studies and a Fellow at Balliol College, and Co-Director of Oxford's e-Horizons Institute.

HANS-JÜRGEN ENGELBRECHT is Professor of Economics at Massey University, Palmerston North, New Zealand.

REBECCA EYNON is a Research Fellow at the Oxford Internet Institute, University of Oxford, where she is the Project Manager of a three-year study funded by the EC entitled Breaking Barriers to e-Government.

MICHAEL I. LUGER has recently assumed the directorship of Manchester Business School. Prior, he was Professor of Public Policy, Business and Planning at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he also directed an applied research centre that focused on economic development problems at the regional, national, and global levels.

NICHOLAS C. MAYNARD researches the impact of information and communications technology on international economic development. He has had a series of research and private sector jobs within the development and telecommunications industries.

JORGE RODRÍGUEZ is a lecturer and researcher at the Autonomous Metropolitan University in Mexico City, Mexico.

RUTH F. G. WILLIAMS is a lecturer in Economics at Victoria University in Melbourne. She is also a Research Associate at the Queensland Centre for Mental Health Research.