

Contributors to this Issue

WILLIAM H. DUTTON is Professor of Internet Studies, Oxford Internet Institute, University of Oxford, UK.

HADI KARDOYO is a Staff Member at the Centre for Science and Technology Development Studies, Indonesian Institute of Sciences, Indonesia.

TOM MANDEVILLE is Senior Lecturer, School of Economics, University of Queensland, Australia.

THE E-SCIENCE DIRECTORS' FORUM STRATEGY WORKING GROUP (Malcolm Atkinson, David Britton, Peter Coveney, David De Roure, Ned Garnett, Neil Geddes, Robert Gurney, Keith Haines, Lorna Hughes, David Ingram, Paul Jeffreys, Liz Lyon, Ian Osborne, Ron Perrott, Rob Procter, Chris Rusbridge, Anne Trefethen and Paul Watson) was established by the e-Science Directors' Forum in April 2007. It has nineteen members from fourteen UK universities, from industry and Research Councils with representatives covering the interests of each of the Research Councils, researchers who use e-Science methods, centres that provide regional and national e-Science support and specialist centres, such as the NGS, OMII-UK, NCeSS and Digital Data Curation. Its mission is to get plans adopted that continue the delivery of the benefits of e-Science to researchers.

RUTH F. G. WILLIAMS is a Senior Lecturer in Economics at Victoria University in Melbourne. She is also a Research Associate at the Queensland Centre for Mental Health Research.